

Samaritan Health Services

Abstract

Formed over the course of five years beginning in 1997, Samaritan is a not-for-profit regional health system that brings together community hospitals, physician clinics and health insurance plans to serve more than 265,000 residents of Oregon’s Benton, Lincoln and Linn counties. Samaritan is governed by a board, which includes community members, physicians and hospital leaders. As one of the region’s major employers, Samaritan actively participates in efforts to strengthen and grow the local economy, as well as to improve quality of life through high-achieving schools, a strong network of social services, and a commitment to preserving and protecting the environment. Together with our 6,000 employees, Samaritan is committed to “building healthier communities together.”

To Which Population

“It’s about more than giving clinical care,” said Glen Cunningham, vice president of Population Health Services at Samaritan. “It’s about looking at all aspects of a person’s health — physical, mental and emotional well-being — and making sure they have the resources to manage their care. It’s about keeping people healthy.” Together with community partners, Samaritan provides outreach and support in Benton, Lincoln and Linn counties. New tools are being used to analyze and respond to health needs. These include the software program, Unite Us, which links medical providers with community organizations that provide health-related services, such as food, housing and transportation.
